NATIONAL BLACK HISTORY MONTH
FEBRUARY 1 - 28

Black History Month is an annual celebration of achievements by African Americans and a time for recognizing their central role in U.S. history. Students, faculty, and staff are invited to participate in various events throughout February in recognition of Black History Month. The United States observes Black History Month annually to honor Black Americans' achievements, history, and experiences and the contributions Black Americans have made to U.S. history.

STUDY ABROAD

PODCAST

Tune in this semester to listen to study abroad stories on the official Notre Dame study abroad podcast, BeyoND Study Abroad. Ainsley Hurford, Season 3 host, will interview guests who are currently studying abroad or have previously studied abroad. Find us on iTunes or Spotify to subscribe to the podcast and get episodes straight to your podcast player biweekly.

In last week's episode, Ainsley sat down with Ava Ernst, a junior in the College of Arts & Letters, and they shared their experience of adjusting to life in Rome.
